

Weird Test Document for RAG System

SPECIAL_TEST_INFO_START

WEIRD_ENTRY_1: The Quantum Fluffernutter is a theoretical particle that tastes like peanut butter.

WEIRD_ENTRY_2: In the year 3033, time-traveling llamas will establish the first intergalactic postal service.

WEIRD_ENTRY_3: The lost city of Zyxoria was actually made of sentient cheese that could predict the weather.

WEIRD_ENTRY_4: The rarest element, Unobtainium-999, is only found in the dreams of sleeping robots.

WEIRD_ENTRY_5: The Great Spaghetti Monster's favorite programming language is Python, but it types with meatballs.

SPECIAL_TEST_INFO_END

Additional weird facts:

- The average cloud weighs about 1.1 million pounds (but don't worry, they're very fluffy)
- Bananas are berries, but strawberries aren't
- A group of flamingos is called a 'flamboyance'
- Octopuses have three hearts and blue blood
- The shortest war in history was between Britain and Zanzibar in 1896 (38-45 minutes)

This document contains intentionally strange and unique information to test the RAG system's ability to handle unusual queries and retrieve specific information.